Hospital funds spent elsewhere, says Brandt

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Ontario government has spent the money earmarked for the Haliburton Hospital on other projects, according to the leader of the provincial Progressive Conservatives.

Andy Brandt, who has served as interim leader for the Conservatives for the past two years, was at a fund-raising function in Lindsay Friday, where he told The Times he will be turning up the pressure to have the government make good on its promises.

Brandt was the guest speaker at Friday's fund-raiser for the Victoria-Haliburton Provincial Progressive Conservative Association. Prior to the meeting he discussed the situation regarding the expansion of the chronic care facilities in the Haliburton Hospital with The Times.

Brandt said he was recently made aware of the fact that Haliburton is still waiting for funding to begin construction of the 18-bed chronic care facility in Haliburton and was provided with a copy of the full page ad which ran in the two local papers.

The ad, placed by Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis, outlined the history of the proposed expansion and demanded that the Ontario government live up to its

Crash victim, Jarrett Gentle, still in a coma

A Minden area youth was reported still unconscious in a Toronto hospital Friday afternoon following an accident some two weeks earlier. 16 year old Jarrett Gentle was the driver of one vehicle involved in a crash on South Lake Road a mile east of Minden.

Following the accident, the grade 11 student was rushed to Toronto General Hospital suffering from head injuries. While he has responded at times during his hospitalization, he is said to remain in a coma. Doctors are also apparently concerned about possible complications of pneumonia. While not conscious, it is reported the youth has moved his arms and legs, a positive sign.

Senior Redmen meet Falcons in playoffs

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

The Senior Redmen soccer team will be in a do-or-die fight for the Kawartha West Championship this Wednesday as they face the Fenelon Falls Falcons in Haliburton.

The Redmen and the Falcons are tied for first place in the division with seven points apiece, after Haliburton ended its regular season with a 3-2 victory over the LCVI Lancers last Wednesday.

The Seniors played their best game of the season according to Coach Walter Tose, and managed to control the play for most of the game.

Haliburton played the game without three of their regular starters and this says a lot for the bench when they can go in and play that kind of game, Tose said.

Jason Goodall and Danny Kernohan came off the bench and each earned an assist by setting up the plays that lead to goals for the Redmen.

The first goal came when Goodall made an excellent effort when chasing the ball into the corner and passed to Jan Haedicke who put it into the mesh. This was the first of two goals for the day for Haedicke.

Kernohan set up teammate Cecil Smith on the second Redmen point. Tose commends Goodall and Kernohan for "supporting us when we really needed it."

The victory, coupled with a Fenelon Falls tie, puts Haliburton in top spot along with the Falcons.

Because the Redmen scored more goals than the Falcons during their regular season meetings, the sudden-death play-off game will be held in Haliburton next Wednesday at 2 p.m.

The Junior Redmen finished their season on a less positive note, dropping a 4-0 game against the LCVI juniors.

Tose says the juniors played well, but their success was hampered by the fact they had to play one man short for the entire game.

The game was scoreless going into the second half, but the shorthanded Haliburton squad ran out of wind and gave up four goals to the Lancers in the final half.

Juvenile hockey returns to the Highlands

For the first time since the Minden Juveniles fell just short of winning back-to-back provincial championships in the spring of 1986, the county will be icing a Juvenile hockey team.

In spite of their reservations about the quality of Juvenile hockey in the area, the Minden Minor Hockey Association has agreed to work the team into this season's scheduling if enough players are interested.

Kevin Smith, who will be coaching the team, says there will be no problem getting enough players to ice a team. He says he knows of at least 15 players in that age group (18 to 20) who want to try out.

Four years ago, Minden's Juvenile hockey team went all the way to the Ontario championship. The very next season, the team was good enough to make it to the semi-finals before it was eliminated. However, with the advent of

Hockey Association demands clean play

High School hockey, interest in this league fell off and there hasn't been a team from the county for the past three seasons.

There wouldn't have been a team this season, either, if not for Smith. During the registration for minor hockey, there were no players to sign up for this level. However, Smith, who coached Midget house league last season, knew of a number of potential players who wanted to put together a team. Along with trainers Mark Davies and Jim Hambleton, he says he approached the Minden Minor Hockey Association to sign them up.

For two reasons, however, the association was reluctant to allow this team to play. Brian Ladurantaye, who is a member of the association, says the main reason for the reluctance was that they didn't register until well after the deadline had passed. He also noted that association chairman Brian Shaw wanted to make sure that any team sanctioned by the association would be playing good clean hockey.

Smith says he doesn't understand why people often relate Juvenile hockey to "goon hockey."

"I don't know where that's coming from," he said. "Hockey is hockey. I'm not going to tolerate fights. I don't mind a few hits, but that's part of the game."

Smith says he discovered the need for this league while coaching last season. A few of the players on his team were Juvenile age and had nowhere else to play but in Midget house league, where the age restrictions could be overlooked. There were other boys throughout the county in the same boat, and these are the people who will be playing this season on the Juvenile team.

"What's great about it," says Smith, "is that the boys are from all over the county." He says it's not just a Minden team. There will be players from Haliburton and Gooderham as well.

The Juveniles will be playing in the 'C' division of the OMHA, which places them against teams from Millbrook, Uxbridge, Bowmanville and Fenelon Falls. Smith says he's not sure of what other teams are in this division.

Winter's arrival too soon for Bob Lake residents, Township still refuses to plow their narrow road

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

With the first snowflakes of the season already beginning to fall, residents are still trying to get the township to assume winter maintenance of the lower portion of Minden's Bob Lake Road.

Ed Hisson, President of the Bob Lake Cottager's Association headed a delegation that attended the most recent council meeting and tried to persuade council to reverse an earlier decision to stop plowing a 600-metre stretch of Bob Lake Road.

Council decided to discontinue plowing the portion of the road at a meeting in mid-August on the recommendation of Minden's Road Superintendent Clayton Cameron. Cameron said the road is so narrow in spots that driving the plow along the it is dangerous.

It was the second trip to council by residents of the road, but they came away without a commitment by the township to renew winter maintenance.

During the first trip on August 14, property owner Art Turner argued that the road had been deeded to the township in 1961 by then-owner William Smith for the price of one dollar. He said the deal gave the township ownership of the existing road to a width of 33 feet from the centre line.

However council said the deed was questionable because there was no accurate description of the road's location.

The portion of the road which seem to plow's passage and the township had the cars ticketed for parking violations. In the subsequent court appearance, the judge found that the cars were actually parked on Palmer's property, which abutts the travelled portion of the road, and therefore were not subject to the parking tickets.

Roy Palmer attended the August 14

tion of the road and make it safe for plowing. "If we had the land we'd do it," he said.

Hisson told council that Palmer has made arrangements to park his vehicles on a neighbour's yard in order to keep the road clear for plowing, but was told that the travelled portion of the road will have to be widened before council will reverse its decision.

It was agreed that Palmer does not own enough property between his cottage and the road to deed a strip to the township. However, it was suggested that the owner across the road, Claude Brown, may be able to.

Berry said the township can't expect to have a 66-foot right of way, the standard width for a township road. However he said the township needs more than the existing road. He said the residents should get together and see how much land is available to deed to the township for the road and then have Cameron inspect the situation.

Councillor Mike Maher suggested that 33 feet may be a reasonable amount.

Unless the travelled portion of this road can be widened, it poses difficulty and danger for snow plow operators.

cause road crews the most difficulty is where it approaches the lake. At that point the road narrows to about 20 feet in width, and Cameron says in the winter there isn't enough room to manoeuvre the township's equipment. The situation becomes more perilous as the driver encounters cars parked along the side of the road.

In one case, a snow plow driver encountered cars parked in front of Roy Palmer's property. The parked cars blocked the meeting and attempted to resolve the situation by offering to enter into an agreement with the township, whereby he and neighbour John Fortune would keep their cars off of the side of the road if the township would resume plowing.

However, at the October 12 meeting when the residents returned to pursue the matter with council, Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry made it clear that Minden needs to have more land deeded over to the township in order to widen the travelled por-

Juveniles return

It's great to see the return of Juvenile hockey to this county after a lapse of three straight seasons.

Juvenile, which is the next level above Midgets, can be an exciting brand of hockey, especially if, as promised, the coaching staff insists on good, clean play. Fan support for a strong county-wide team in this league can do more to get the Highlands pulling together than all the talk in the world.

In all likelihood it will take several years of play before we will see another team of the calibre that took us to the all-Ontario championship in the 1984-85 season. But at least this is a start.

The reluctance of the Minden Minor Hockey Association to accept this team into its fold is understandable, though. Juvenile hockey has, to some extent, earned a reputation for being excessively rough—or as some call it, "goon hockey." The association has worked hard to maintain a standard of clean hockey here and doesn't want to face the nightmare of having its reputation tarnished by a gang of thugs on skates.

However, we're sure that this will not be the case. The coaching staff of this team—Kevin Smith, Mark Davies and Jim Hambleton—is made up of the same people who coached the Minden Junior Fastball team through an outstanding season this summer. Davies and Hambleton are both OPP officers who, by the nature of their jobs, understand the importance of playing by the rules.

Win or lose, we're looking forward to seeing our Juveniles back on the ice for another season.

Hunting not all bad

Students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School had the opportunity to listen to a presentation last week from noted author and environmentalist R.D. Lawrence. We hope, though, that these students are able to sort out the difference between fact and opinion.

Lawrence, who lives in Haliburton County, had some valuable information and experiences to relate to the students. Unfortunately, he sprinkled a dash of opinion into the dialogue when the topic of hunting arose.

Lawrence, who admits he would hunt if he needed to, told the young audience in the ASES library that he is against sport hunting. Sport, he said, is hockey or football. "You don't set out to kill something in sport," he said.

Many people will agree with his views. However, there are at least as many who will disagree. There is another side to the story, one the students should have had the opportunity to hear last week.

If the children are to be exposed to views from one side of an issue, there should also be someone in attendance to present the opposing view.

A coach's nightmare or hockey reality?

Personal firearms loved like pets

"With all the violence and murder and killings we've had in the United States, I think you will agree that we must keep firearms from people who have no business with them."

Ah, yes. Was there ever a phenomenon quite as bizarre as America's on-going love affair with personal firearms? Year in, year out, hundreds of thousands of Americans find themselves staring at the business end of a handgun. 22,000 die from the encounter annually. A huge percentage of the remainder are cripples and scarred for life. Doctors, nurses, even law enforcement officers look at the daily carnage and shake their heads in disbelief. Occasionally, some braver-than-average American like the one quoted above will clear his throat and ask if it isn't about time the USA joined the rest of the civilized world in restricting access to firearms. Whereupon America, like some punch-drunk barroom brawler, shakes its head, lifts its face out of the sawdust and growls "Whut? Take away our constitooshunul right tuh bear arms? No way, Hoss!"

And that's it! No more discussion. Nobody wants to hear now there are more gun homicides in the city of Washington in one month than there are in Great Britain in one year. Don't try to tell them that more of their countrymen have been shot by each other than were gunned down by all the German, North Korean and Viet Cong soldiers put together. Americans just flat out love their shootin' irons.

It's a love that gets expressed in odd ways. Designer handguns for the little lady, for instance. Smith and Wesson has just launched a petite pistol called "The Ladysmith". It comes in tasteful frosted blue steel with its own colour coordinated clutch bag carrying case. Last spring, Miami hosted the Bing Bang Boom gun show—a fashion show on how to wear concealed weapons. "We're trying to show the contemporary woman that she can carry a concealed weapon and still look good", said a

Condominium project jeopardizes village setting

Editor:

It is important to me to locate and raise my family in a low-density residential area. In the past ten years we have placed this need well ahead of careers, promotions, increased wages, new cars, vacations, etc., and it has been a difficult dream to realize at times. To date, the Village of Minden has provided us with the best opportunity possible to enjoy a rewarding family life where we have luxuriated in the wholesome atmosphere of a low-density, village setting. Sadly, most families in Ontario do not have the opportunity we in Haliburton County delight in. It was by luck that we came here and by choice that we have remained.

When we purchased our home in 1979 we checked at the Municipal Office in Minden to confirm that the property we wished to buy was surrounded by residential uses. When by-law 86-26 was enforced, it supported

Zoning change could affect the entire community

Editor:

I have been following, with great interest the saga of the proposed condominium development for Minden's village core.

In order for this project to proceed, I understand that an amendment to Anson, Hindon and Minden's Density By-law will be necessary. Should this amendment be passed by the council it will be the new standard for the whole Village of Minden. Currently, the maximum number of units that can be constructed on one hectare (2.47 acres) of land is 36. The new maximum would be 56 units (an increase of over 50 per cent).

This amendment has the potential of affecting all residents of Minden. However, it appears that the fight to maintain the present high standard of housing density is being fought solely by the immediate neighbours of Mr. Ray Moore's proposed condominium complex. Perhaps there are many other ratepayers in our village who are pleased with our present density by-law. Rather than sit back and hope that the people who live in the area of the proposed

Minden Place Condos can successfully defend our present high standard of medium density, it might be wise for these other people to stand up and be counted now, before other "medium" density developments are planned for their neighbourhoods.

If this amendment goes ahead, we may all have to live with it. I am urging the people of Minden to contact their councillors, write letters, or attend the Anson, Hindon and Minden council meeting, October 26, at the Municipal Building (7:30 p.m.). Make your views known, before it's too late. Fifty-six families living on one hectare (2.47 acres) seems like fairly "high" medium density housing. Is this what Minden needs?

L. Raback,

Get the facts right before correcting others' mistakes

Editor:

In regards to Gareth K. Kellett's commentary: I was unaware that being a (retired) vice-principal of an elementary school qualifies him to being the Weatherman.

Where does he get off telling everyone that the residents of the Denna Lake Road area only experience prevailing winds that blow from west to east? How can he possibly know this living in the town of Minden? Who is he to tell us what we smell and don't smell? It's also strange but my weather vane shows him off slightly with his predictions.

I would recommend that "everyone" should get their facts right before correcting others.

Kinmount, Ont.

Outsiders have a right to comment

In battles of the future of areas like the Stein Valley in B.C., Temagami in Ontario, James Bay in Quebec or the Amazon in Brazil, nonresident environmentalists are often accused of being "outsiders" who have no right to stick their noses into other people's business. But the atmosphere, water, soil and biodiversity on the planet make up a single continuous complex of which we are also a part. The issues at stake matter to all of us. Take the Rafferty and Alameda dams in Saskatchewan.

The Moose Mountain Creek flows into the Souris River in Saskatchewan, then it crosses the border into North Dakota, curls back up into Manitoba and empties into the Assiniboine River. The Souris River and Moose Mountain Creek flow through prairie valleys supporting several rare and endangered plants, a type of ecosystem rapidly disappearing in Canada. In the U.S., the Souris is the basis for a $4-million fishery and flows through two wildlife refuges that support some 22,000 ducks.

From time to time, the Souris overflows and in 1976, the town of Minot, North Dakota, was flooded for over a month. The townspeople urged the construction of the Burlington Dam for flood control but were opposed by the rural people who successfully stopped it.

In the mid-80's the Saskatchewan government of Grant Devine proposed to build a coal-fired power station called Shand. It was to be air cooled. North Dakota offered $41 million (US) if Saskatchewan would build a dam. The American offer made the Rafferty Dam on the Souris feasible — it could control flooding downstream and the stored water could be used to cool Shand. However, international agreements require that at least half of the original water flow be guaranteed downstream to the U.S. In order to ensure a supply to fulfill that spokesman.

Of course it doesn't really matter how you look if you happen to be strolling by Lindbergh Junior High School in Long Beach, California—the kids inside won't be able to see you anyway. That's because of the new, nine-foot high, concrete wall that runs between the school and a nearby housing project. Purpose of the wall: to stop bullets. Gunfire from drug dealers and other assorted street scum in the nearby project has threatened the lives of kids and teachers at the school. Not long ago a student playing basketball in the schoolyard was shot in the chest and nearly died. That's when they decided to turn Lindbergh Junior High into a Fort.

"It's a really sad that something like this has to be done," says principal Max Fraley, "but it's needed in today's society."

Maybe in your society, Max, but not in mine. Americans who try to change their insane gun control laws find themselves staring down the well-oiled muzzle of the National Rifle Association. The NRA cranks out a steady stream of advertisements that play up every American's "patriotic right" to own a lethal weapon. The Association also lavishes megabucks on key Washington lobbyists to snarl and suffocate any impending gun control legislation.

America's gunhappiness doesn't have much to do with logic. Recent history has seen the near-shooting of President Ford, the wounding of President Reagan and the murder of President Kennedy. You'd think that kind of bloodstained legacy would make the Presidency very keen on gun control, right? No on your snub-nose. President Bush (a card-carrying member of the NRA himself) recently refused to ban the sale of semi-automatic weapons.

Mind you, the U.S. did come down hard on lawn darts. Over the past ten years, three people have been killed by errant lawn darts. In the same decade nearly a quarter of a million Americans have been killed by guns. Lawn darts are banned, semi-automatic weapons are swell.

Make any sense to you?

Oh, that fellow quoted at the beginning of the column? he made that speech just five days before his rendezvous with a scruffy drifter in a Los Angeles hotel kitchen. The drifter was carrying an 8-shot, .22 caliber Iver Johnson in a brown paper lunchbag.

The other guy's name was Bobby Kennedy.

PROTECTING THE ENVIRONMENT:

It's the number one issue in the Highlands

We don't inherit the land from our ancestors, we borrow it from our grandchildren.

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

This Indian proverb reflects an attitude toward the environment shared by a majority of residents, both seasonal and permanent, of Haliburton County.

In the recent survey conducted by The Times, the environment was named as the number one issue in the Highlands and many respondents said environmental concerns are one area not being adequately addressed by local government.

Recently The Times contacted some of the people who indicated a strong concern for the environment in their survey responses and asked them to expand on their comments.

"We have to live in the place," says Minden resident Pierce Whitney. "We need water to drink and air to breathe."

Whitney, a resident of the area for more than 30 years, says he has watched as the water quality in Lake Kashagawigamog near his home has deteriorated. He cites an increase in weeds and decrease in water clarity as symptoms of this trend.

YOUR VIEWS

He points to faulty septic systems and overdevelopment as prime contributors and says it's important to remember that we are not only polluting our own water, but also affecting those areas downstream from us.

Somerville and Bexley Townships, which lie downstream along the Gull and Burnt Rivers, should be "belly aching like mad" about the condition of the water flowing from Haliburton County.

Soyers Lake resident Bruce Birrell and his wife have been permanent residents on Poverty Bay ever since they converted their cottage into a home 15 years ago. Birrell says the 44 cottages make Poverty Bay the most developed area on Soyers Lake.

"The concern of lake water purity is being overlooked in the eagerness of council to grant building permits," says Birrell. "I'm concerned at the ease and quickness with which council issues permits for smaller lakeshore lots."

Ursula Lee and her husband Bob have been cottagers on Bob Lake for the last 30 years. Lee says she noticed a large amount of bright green algae growing in the water around her property this year, something that wasn't a problem in previous years.

She says concern for the environment is important, not only for Haliburton County, but everywhere. "In two or three generations, it might not be usable," she says.

Bob Lee says, being cottagers, he and his wife get most of their news through the paper and after the fact making it harder to become involved. If they lived in Lutterworth year round, they would become more vocal and get involved in things, he says.

Pat Hough is a cottager on South Lake in Snowdon Township, and she and her husband, John, feel they have a stake in the area because they eventually plan to move up here permanently. "It's a part of our life so we're doubly concerned," she says. "If something isn't done, the environment will be lost to future generations. There won't be a forest left and the water won't be fit to drink if we don't all take part in managing the environment."

For their part, the Houghs are involved in the environment committee set up by the South Lake Cottager's Association. She says the priority of the committee is to educate property owners around the lake and make them conscious of protecting the environment. Using soap in the lake and altering the shoreline are the kind of activities people do without realizing the impact they are having on the environment.

The Association also organized a pitch-in campaign that involved members picking up garbage around the area.

One of the people who answered the survey even suggested a way to help protect the environment from overdevelopment.

Glen Carter, a Minden resident who lives on Lake Kashagawigamog, says Minden should consider becoming the "town that dares to stay small." He says severely limiting future development would help guard against further deterioration of the environment and would preserve our standing as a scenic tourist area.

"The politicians want more tourist dollars, but they're leading us down a false path," Carter says.

A low-growth policy would be economically viable, says Carter, because the area would be able to market itself as an unspoiled natural setting "while the lakes are still clean."

He says he can even envision the CBC news program The Journal doing a special about Minden, "The town that dared to stay small." Pointing to the large development projects which have taken place in Muskoka, Carter says local councils are pursuing more of the same by supporting condominiums and luxury townhouses. "I wouldn't like to see us become like Deerhurst," he says.

By promoting an image of clean, quiet and small, Carter says Haliburton County would still attract the tourist dollars and could expand the winter tourist season by focusing more heavily on activities like cross country skiing.

Carter realizes his idea would require a long-term planning program and a philosophy of low growth would probably be politically unpopular.

"Local businesses have the idea that more people mean more money but there's a certain cut-off point where, instead of one drug store you have two, or instead of one grocery store you have two. Then individual prosperity doesn't increase."

There is a limit on the amount of prosperity a community can achieve, suggests Carter, and perhaps Minden has reached its sustainable level.

Not surprisingly, Minden Reeve Ray Moore has a different outlook on the local economic situation. He calls the summer tourist industry a "vicious cycle" where people grab what they can for 10 weeks and hold onto it through the winter.

He feels the local economy should be developed and diversified in order to better provide jobs and stability.

Moore says councillors are not experts on the environment, which is a "huge and difficult" issue. He feels the responsibility of guarding the environment should be left to the experts in the Ministry of Natural Resources and the Ministry of the Clean air, clean water and an abundance of wildlife are the attractions that have drawn many people to the Highlands. These resources are slowly being squandered, and most want this trend reversed.

Environment.

"There isn't one of us on council who has enough information to decide against a lot of the projects that come to us," says Moore. "There are 28 agencies that report on development and any of them can recommend against it even if we approve it." He says these agencies don't just rubber stamp their approval but look at the projects very closely.

"A lot of people think council has all the answers, but we're just ordinary people," he says.

Moore does think that Minden council takes the environment seriously and is addressing it through waste management and recycling programs.

In August Minden council was asked to take part in the formation of an environmental advisory committee but the councillors voted against it, citing heavy work loads and tight schedules.

Moore says he personally favoured the formation of the committee and says he would appreciate their input. "We should listen to these people who are concentrating on the local situation."

Dr. Gordon Smith the Canarvon resident who is spearheading the committee says he plans to go ahead with his proposal despite council's decision not to be involved. "I'm going to beat the bushes and see how much interest and value there is in such a committee."

At election time the environment makes a solid platform from which politicians can win votes, says Smith, but when it comes to acting on the promises, governments are still favouring corporate developers. "They dream upward and onward at the expense of the environment."

Smith would like to see townships establish water-quality studies for the lakes in order to establish appropriate policies for shoreline development.

Other initiatives Smith would like to see implemented include a "good, viable waste management and toxic waste disposal plan," put in place as soon as possible.

The reason he suggested that the committee work in concert with council was to take some of the work from their shoulders, says Smith. By encouraging community involvement and using the committee as a forum for communicating concerns and come up with solutions instead of just short-term measures. "We have to put the environment on the front burner," he says.

That is exactly what Lutterworth Township Council is attempting to do.

Reeve Carol Puffer says the township is looking at forming an environment committee very similar to the one proposed by Smith.

She says council will ask people from the community to join the committee and "start addressing the issue more in depth." The proposed committee will make recommendations to council about what direction the township should take.

She agrees with Smith's emphasis on the importance of lake capacity studies. The Ministry of the Environment is already moving in that direction, says Puffer, with the implementation of Policy Two designed to protect lake trout populations.

The Ministry has informed Lutterworth that it will object to any more severances on Little Bob or Moore Lakes in an attempt to prevent further deterioration of water quality.

Puffer would like to see the township work more closely with the ministry in these endeavours and suggests that ministry representatives may be invited to attend the environment committee meetings.

In other areas, however, Puffer thinks the province is not giving enough support to municipalities in their efforts to address environmental concerns. She says the county has been ready for almost a year to proceed with the Waste Management Master Plan but the province has delayed getting back to council.

The province has also been responsible for the hold-up in Haliburton County getting their plastic blue recycling boxes.

"The Ministry is finding that the 'unlimited' source of funds is not so unlimited," says Puffer. The ministry had promised to fund 66 per cent of the cost of the boxes but have not come back with new application forms making the process more difficult.

Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey says he doesn't think any of the municipalities are properly addressing the environmental issue because they are restricted by the large amount of money required.

He says Dysart council is enacting initiatives as fast as they are able including investigating a new landfill site. He admits that they "could be doing more."

An attempt is being made to identify and address those areas that need improving, both at the municipal and county level. "We are conscious of it now more than ever. There is no doubt the environment is a number one issue and will be for many years."

All three reeves agree that the environment is an intrinsic part of Haliburton's economy and must be protected to maintain the tourist trade.

Although lake water quality is the most evident environmental issue in Haliburton County, the survey also indicates that people are worried about pollution from cars and industry and issues such as noise pollution and light pollution. All of these factors combine to threaten the quality of life that has drawn so many people to the county.

28 learn to be lay pastoral visitors

Course prepares people to comfort others

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

For people living in nursing homes, or who are confined to a bed in hospital or at home, comfort is often hard to come by.

A training program which finished last week in Minden is going to help provide that needed comfort. Twenty eight people, most from the Haliburton County area, took part in a training program to become lay pastoral visitors.

The six-week course prepares people to go into hospitals, nursing homes, or the homes of shut-ins, to provide comfort and support to those in need.

The classes were held at Hyland Crest and were taught by Jean Lummiss, a retired nurse and a lay pastoral visitor with St. Paul's Anglican Church in Lindsay. She was assisted by clergy from the different churches in the Minden area.

Although sponsored by the Anglican Deanery of Victoria-Haliburton, the program was ecumenical, involving the Roman Catholic Church, the Baptist Church, and the United Church.

During the program, Lummiss spoke on a wide range of topics aimed at preparing the students for the task of being pastoral visitors. She spoke about, dealing with the elderly, palliative care, listening skills, dying and grief, and the use of prayer and scriptures.

Lummiss says the visitors' job is to provide support and compassion for those who need it. The visitors are directed by their church and provide comfort "with love in Christ", but Lummiss says they are not "bible thumpers."

Barb Trocewicz and Barb Fawcett were two of the local people who were behind the organization of the program.

Trocewicz, a lay pastoral visitor herself, had seen the program in Lindsay and was interested in having one held in Haliburton County.

She says the participation of 28 people was excellent and far better than expected. "I thought that if we had eight people it would be wonderful," says Trocewicz.

Upon completing the course, the participants had obtained one of three levels of lay pastoral visitors. Given the response to the first level course, Trocewicz says she hopes to eventually offer the other two courses.

Lummiss says that after completing each level, the visitors then "intern" and go out and apply what they have learned. The graduates of the Haliburton program will visit people in Hyland Crest, the hospitals, Extendicare in Haliburton and people confined to their homes.

The most import gift pastoral visitors can offer is their ability to sit and listen, says Trocewicz, because many of the people who are visited don't have anyone to speak to. The visitors will see people on a regular basis and get to know them.

Each visitor is under the direction or "banner" of his or her own church. When a pastor is aware of someone who is in need of companionship or support he will contact one of the visitors in his parish.

A support group is being formed for the visitors so they can get together and talk about common problems. Lummiss says the teaching process is ongoing, and the visitors never stop learning and improving.

When addressing the group on the final day of the program, Lummiss told them to use what they have learned, not only when making visits, but also in their day-to-day life.

"Wherever you are, apply the teaching and you'll find it will change your life," she said. "Listen not only with your ears but with your eyes, your heart and your emotions."

Prince Street rezoning gets first reading by council

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council has given first reading of a rezoning by-law to allow the construction of 20 townhouses to be built on property on Prince Street.

Richard Milewski is planning to buy the 2.4-acre site from John Kernohan and wants it rezoned to R3 (Residential Third Density) to allow for the development.

At a recent public meeting, neighbouring property owners expressed concerns about the effect the development will have on their properties, especially with regard to drainage.

A small creek runs through a portion of the property and Milewski plans to divert the course of the water. Neighbour Carol Emmerson asked where the creek would be diverted to and how it would affect surrounding properties.

Milewski said he planned to ditch both sides of the property and that the ditches would not only drain his property, but his neighbours' as well. He said the ground water collected by the ditches would be diverted into the creek at the back of the lot.

The property has 120 feet of frontage on Prince Street and the townhouses will be served by a single driveway. There was some concern raised that one access would not be sufficient for 20 residential units, but Councillor Lewis Stevens pointed out that both MacKayville and Highland Gate Estate subdivisions are served by only a single access road.

If the deal goes ahead, Milewski plans to pre-sell the units this winter. The townhouses will be freehold units, which means the buyer purchases, not only the house, but the land it sits on as well.

In response to the neighbours' concerns about the drainage, Milewski said he has talked to an engineer

College strike means suspension of most courses

Close to 400 Haliburton County students are feeling the effects of the province-wide strike by college teaching staff.

All continuing education and night school courses offered in Haliburton through Sir Sandford Fleming College are being suspended until the strike is over, said Gayle Hazel, information officer.

Teachers at Ontario's 22 colleges voted 54 per cent in favour of strike action, which took effect on Oct. 18. The main stumbling blocks in the contract negotiation are job security, sick leave and wages.

The strike action affects all courses led by full-time teachers, who are organized under the Ontario Public Service Employee's Union. However, while the strike is in progress, the courses led by part-time non-unionized staff are also being suspended, said Hazel. This is what affects Haliburton County students the most.

All post-secondary, manpower-sponsored, continuing education and general interested classes have been suspended until further notice.

The Futures program is the one exception to the rule. This program, which provides retraining and work experience to students between the ages of 16 and 24 will be allowed to continue for those students who already have work placements. Hazel said that college faculty do not come into play for this portion of the program, therefore it is not affected by the strike. The pre-employment preparation portion of this program, however, is suspended until a settlement can be reached.

College president Brian Desbiens said last week that active negotiations are on hold while both parties assess their situation. The presidents of the local branches of the union were to have met on Sunday.

For students enrolled at any of Ontario's 22 colleges there are no courses being offered while the strike continues. However, this does not necessarily mean the year is lost.

"We will do everything possible to protect the integrity of our students' education," Desbiens said in a brief issued at the outset of the strike. "Depending on what happens, this may mean that classes will have to be made up and there are a variety of options for doing so. In the educational system in Ontario, students have successfully managed to get their year when strikes have occurred before." He said the college will be striving to ensure that this can be accomplished again.

Possible options to make up missed classes include weekend or evening classes, cancellation of the winter break, or an extension into the summer. Desbiens said whatever option is to be chosen will depend on the length of the strike.

If students decide to back out of their courses for the year, the standard tuition fee refund policy is in place, Desbiens said. The refund will be subject to the normal penalties.

In the event of a prolonged strike resulting in the cancellation of programs, he said Sir Sandford Fleming College will be "as liberal as permitted in the refund of fees."

The college will continue to release OSAP funds to students for the fall term. There may be additional emergency OSAP funding available if the strike is prolonged.

who suggested the use of the ditches.

Reading from a planner's report, Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry said planner Bob Lehman had recommended approval as long as certain conditions are met. The conditions include a site plan agreement, comments from the Ministry of Natural Resources about the creek, that the township's flood plain policy be met, and that a drainage report be provided.

"He won't get a building permit until an engineer tells us that the water will go away," said Berry.

"I can't see how council can pass it when there's four people sitting here who don't want it," said property owner Irene Moore (no relation to the reeve).

Reeve Ray Moore suggested that council give the by-law first and second reading to show the council's intent, but reserve the third and final reading until Milewski produces an engineers report which addresses the drainage concerns.

Berry said that as Milewski plans to sell the lots this winter before beginning construction, asking for a drainage report will not delay his development.

Ministry steps up fight against habitat destruction with stiff fines

The fight against fish and wildlife habitat destruction in central Ontario is heating up.

In order to curb the loss of fish habitat and natural shorelines, Conservation Officers from the Minden District of the Ministry of Natural Resources have laid 15 charges under the Public Lands Act and another two charges under the Lakes and Rivers Improvement Act since April 1 of this year.

Fines ranging from $50 to $500 have been levied in Minden and Peterborough courts against a number of persons convicted for dredging, filling or building retaining walls or docks on area lakes without work permits this year.

Officer Dave Ferguson of the Minden District indicates that for many years it has been an offence against the Fisheries Act to do any work in the water which might affect fish habitat. "That hasn't changed; but now, since the spring of 1989, we have a system in place under the Public Lands Act, which requires that any work in or near the water be carried out under the authority of a work permit," says Ferguson.

The new work permit is required to do any work within the shore lands of our lakes and rivers, regardless of land ownership.

"Shore lands" are defined by the act as "public or private lands covered by the waters of a lake, river, stream or pond and include adjacent lands that are seasonally inundated by water."

The work permit system has not been implemented to stop development entirely, but rather to direct work in the shorelands so that it will not negatively affect fish habitat or shoreline stability.

The amendments to the Public Lands Act also included an increase in the maximum fine from $500 to $5,000. In addition, persons continuing to work after a stop work order may face fines in excess of $200 per day.

Projects clearing causing fish habitat damage may result in charges being laid under the Fisheries Act instead. Under this act, officers may seize equipment and arrest persons involved in an offence. Maximum fines for habitat damage are $5,000 and $10,000 for first and subsequent convictions respectively. The Fisheries Act also provides for prison terms if the court sees fit.

Ferguson says that while the fines have been relatively modest in the first year of the new work permit program, the Man is endangered species unless attitudes changed

Of all the endangered species in the world, humans are the most likely to be wiped from the face of the planet, author R.D. Lawrence told students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School last Thursday.

Lawrence, a noted author, environmentalist and biologist, said that unless something is done to reverse the decay of this planet's environment, man will not survive.

"The human species is most endangered," Lawrence said in response to a question from one of the students. "There are lots of us now, too many in fact," said Lawrence. But if we don't do something about looking after our world, he said humans will not last on this planet.

"If we continue abusing the world the way we are abusing it now, you will have a very poor future."

He said there are 697 endangered species in Canada and the U.S. Each time one is lost, it's like taking a brick out of the corner of a building. Eventually, he said, the building will come tumbling down.

Lawrence, who lives in Haliburton County, was addressing Grades 5 and 6 students in an hour-long session at the school's library. He related several experience that he has encountered through his extensive research and then opened the floor to questions.

Lawrence had to admit that these young students are surprisingly well informed about environmental issues.

They eagerly responded to his questions with informed answers. And when the tables were turned, they had no shortage of questions to toss at their guest.

Lawrence told the students his interest in the environment and wildlife was sparked at a very early age. And one of his first fascinations was with sharks, which he says have not earned their "vicious, nasty" reputation.

This fascination led him into his first research project, diving with sharks off the coast of South Africa. On one occasion during this project, he said he found himself face to face with an 18-foot white shark. He signalled to be taken up, and as he ascended a steep underwater cliff his helmet struck a rock. He told the students that the noise startled the huge shark, which "took off like a scalded cat."

This experience, he said, proves that sharks aren't as the daring, deadly animals that their reputations suggest. He also noted that sharks' appetites are overstated. He said that, like wolves, they have an unusually large liver which helps them to go for months without eating.

Lawrence, who keeps two wolves in an enclosure on his property, says the ferocity and appetites of these animals is also overstated. He said wolves eat only what they need to survive. And often, he said, if they put on too much weight, wolves will put themselves on a prolonged diet.

Local author and environmentalist R.D. Lawrence shared some of his many experiences with students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School last week.

"People think, 'Oh wolves, they're terrible,'" said Lawrence. However, he said more than 1,000 people have visited his property and after watching his wolves for a while they are "enchanted" by them.

He said he has kept the two wolves since they were just 26 days old and finds them to be friendly, social animals. He said he will sometimes even hold a piece of meat in his teeth and allow the wolves to gently take it away.

People often refer to wolves and sharks as killers, he said. However, added that since all living things have feelings, even deer are killers when they eat grass.

Although he admits he has a special fondness for wolves, Lawrence told the students he doesn't have a favourite animal. Instead, he said he loves them all and opposes the concept of sport hunting.

"I can't accept the term sport hunting," he said. Sports, he said, are games like hockey or football. "You don't set out to kill something in sport."

Lawrence told the children that he has hunted in the past while in remote areas. However, he said he did this in order to get food.

"I will hunt if I have to, but it's not something to boast about," he said. "There's nothing clever or brave about taking a high-powered rifle to kill something because the animal can't defend itself."

Asked if he keeps a gun at his home, Lawrence said he does. "The biggest reason for keeping it is in case some human animal comes around."

promise to fund 66 per cent of the costs.

Brandt took a copy of the ad into the legislature and demanded to know why the government had not yet come through with the promised funding.

He was told the government had spent the money on other projects and there was no additional funding available.

The government's failure to renew its commitment to the hospital is "frustrating and more than just a little upsetting," said Brandt.

Haliburton is just one of many areas in the province that has been left waiting for health care funding, he said. In 1986, the government announced an $850-million program to create 4,400 additional hospital beds in the province. And since that time volunteer fund-raising efforts across Ontario have come up with "literally millions of dollars" to meet the communities' one-third share of the cost.

But these groups have been left "very much without an answer from the Ministry of Health since 1986 and there is no guarantee the hospital in Haliburton will be built," Brandt says.

The government will now follow one of two courses of action says Brandt. They will either not provide the money and

The provincial government has spent the money targetted for hospitals on other projects, says PC leader Andy Brandt. And this is why places like Haliburton are high and dry when they ask for their promised funding for expansions.

hope that local areas forget about the promise, or they will re-announce the commitment to fund the hospitals just prior to another election "and we'll go through the whole thing again."

Brandt does not lay the blame for the government's failure to come across with the funds on Victoria-Haliburton's Liberal MPP John Eakins. He says Eakins is a fine individual who's not at fault for the Ministry of Health's about face. He does fault the Peterson government.

In the coming weeks, Brandt plans to keep the pressure on the government by continuing to attack them in the legislature. He's planning to bring up other cases, similar to Haliburton, and demand to know why the funding hasn't been made available as promised. He urges the local people to continue lobbying Eakins through methods like the newspaper ads.

He says the government is guilty of a breach of trust and this will become "an on-going issue that is not going to fade away."

Government Treasurer Bob Nixon told Brandt that the focus and direction of the health care policy had shifted away from institutions and towards an expansion of community-based health care services aimed at keeping people in their homes.

Brandt says that would be acceptable if the Liberals had strengthened the funding to these community services to meet the need. But he says this hasn't been the case. "There has to be something there to fill the obvious gap."

Local volunteer effort raised their share of the capital costs "by nickels and dimes" says Brandt and it hasn't been easy. He wonders what the government can say to these people when explaining why the province hasn't come through with its share.

Because the government's proposal in 1986 targetted specific amounts of money to specific projects, there is more than just a casual obligation to fulfill the commitment, Brandt says. "Let's get the projects underway as quickly as possible. The least the government can do is renew their commitment."

When the government announced its plan to provide 4,400 new hospital beds in Ontario, there were already 51,000 beds in existence. Since then that number has dropped to 49,000 says Brandt. "Instead of increasing the number by 4,400 they've lost 2,000."

He describes the province's explanation as a "fast shuffle" and says there have been "no answers and no commitment and that's not acceptable."

A vacation to remember

Vacations are generally memorable occasions, but for one Minden couple, their recent trip to the west coast will be etched in their minds forever.

Herbert and Jacqueline Taylor of Donald Street in MacKayville were in downtown San Francisco last Tuesday afternoon when an earthquake, measuring 6.9 on the Richter Scale, rumbled through that city.

The couple arrived home Friday evening, safe and sound, after being virtually in the centre of an event that had rivetted the attention of the world since it occurred.

Herbert and Jacqueline left Toronto October 12 to enjoy a visit with Jacqueline's friend and attend a wedding in the community of Dublin, some 20 miles northeast of San Francisco. Like most people, they had a general awareness that the entire west coast of North America was earthquake prone, but like most other visitors and residents, they were not seriously concerned. This was not their first visit to the west coast.

The visit with friends and the wedding went smoothly, and before the couple headed back to Canada, they planned a shopping excursion to downtown San Francisco.

Using the freeway system, including the double-deck Highway 880, they quickly threaded their way into the downtown on Tuesday of last week. Shopping took the group to a number of stores in the core area. It had been suggested earlier that they return to Dublin at about 5 p.m., however, everyone seemed to be enjoying the outing so they decided to stay later.

"Imagine," Jacqueline said, "we could very easily have been on Highway 880 heading home when the quake struck." It was on the lower level of the two tier highway that most of the fatalities occurred, and it was this level they would have been using on their return.

As it turned out, the group was riding an escalator in the downtown Macy's department store shortly after 5 p.m.

"I felt the hand rail start to shake," Herb recalls. "Then the treads under my feet started jumping about. I thought some kids were playing with the escalator or that the bearings had given out." The machine seemed to be trying to shake itself to pieces. However, when plaster started falling and the light fixtures began swaying madly, they realized it was something more serious.

"The air was filled with an awe-filling sound," Jacqueline said. "It was something I had never heard before and I'll never forget. There was a very eerie feeling. Believe me, I was scared."

Word quickly spread through the store that the area had experienced an earthquake, one much more serious than the minor tremors the residents had become accustomed to. Following the lead of their friends and the directions of the store staff, they moved quickly toward a nearby exit.

At the doorway, they were told not to venture out onto the street immediately as pieces of the building and panes of glass were crashing to the pavement. Waiting in the doorway they could see other frightened and concerned individuals. Some joked to relieve the tension, some cried softly, others prayed.

"There was no panic that we saw," Jacqueline said. "People moved quickly but calmly. They were obviously concerned, but no one panicked. A lot of people stopped to help others. They seemed to know what to do and wanted to make sure everyone was safe."

Herb Taylor has had a long-standing interest in photography. Most recently he purchased a video camera and he was carrying the recorder with him that Tuesday. As he stepped off the escalator, he switched it on and has captured some dramatic footage of the earthquake's aftermath. His tape shows the department store customers waiting tensely in the doorway for the all clear and then the damage in the streets. (His interest in making this video record often meant the group would get ahead of him in their concern to get back to the

The Taylors will have many memories of their recent visit to San Francisco. They were there when the area was shaken by a severe earthquake which claimed numerous lives and caused millions of dollars in damage. One of the souvenirs they managed to bring back was this rare copy of the Sacramento Bee newspaper. The tattered condition of this issue's front page seems to reflect the dramatic banner headline. Herbert and Jacqueline Taylor say it was the last local newspaper available at the San Francisco airport.

parked car as quickly as possible. His interest in capturing the scenes on tape have provided them with a unique souvenir of their visit.

Though not in the most seriously hit area, the debris in the streets and gaping cracks in the buildings offered vivid proof of the seriousness of the earthquake. As after-shocks rumbled through the area, the group made its way past others who had fled nearby buildings, to the parked car.

"...the hand rail started to shake... the treads under my feet started to jump about. I thought some kids were playing with the escalator.... the air was filled with an awe-filling sound.... I'll never forget it."

With the radio tuned to a local station, they joined the exodus of people heading for home. Slowly the seriousness of the earthquake began to unfold as the radio reported on scenes of damage in various parts of the city and beyond. Most bridges had been closed because of structural damage or as a precautionary measure. The trip into the city, which took about 30 minutes, became a six hour return journey. On their way they saw more evidence of the quake—signs down or tilted at weird angles, buildings cracked and the tower of smoke rising from the major fire in the Marina district.

They arrived at their friend's home at midnight. The power was out, but other than for some minor breakage, the house was undamaged. For the next two days they watched on television as the city started to recover from the most serious earthquake since 1906. Wednesday evening they learned the airport had been re-opened following repairs to the control tower.

The couple threaded their way to the airport and were preparing to board when the earthquake made its presence felt once more. Someone in the area of their gate reported the smell of natural gas, one of the serious concerns in the area because of ruptured gas lines.

After holding the passengers back for 15 minutes, it was determined the concern was a false alarm and their flight departed for Toronto just 20 minutes behind schedule. "I've never been at ease when flying," Jacqueline confesses, "but I was never happier than when that plane left the ground."

Will they travel to the west coast again? While their experience last week has certainly heightened their awareness of the potential threat of earthquakes in that area, they think they'll go back again to visit their friend. In fact, Jacqueline has tentatively scheduled a visit for next spring.

But, whether they ever do return they will always remember their October 1989 visit and the day the earth shook beneath their feet. As Jacqueline says, with a chuckle, "This time, I really did leave my heart in San Francisco."

'Octo Project is at Rails' End Gallery

The Octo Project is a photographic celebration and documentation of the life and times of people who were born in the 19th century.

Kitchener photographers Dyan Jones and her late husband Michael, travelled across Canada photographing and speaking with people who were over 88 years of age.

After six months of travelling, Dyan and Michael interviewed and photographed 50 Canadians born before the turn of the century. They spoke with the last living Kwakiutl Princess on Vancouver Island; Sara Breithaupt who remembered watching the Wright brothers in flight while on a vacation in Massachusetts; Joe Chase, now 101 years of age, who was an olympic torch-bearer; Mabel McGuire, whose doctor told her over half a century ago to eat onions to ward off black-throat diptheria and who still eats them faithfully.

The oldest person they interviewed was Isabel

Brucklebark of Walkerton, 107 years old. During this project, Dyan discovered that "people have very sensory memories." A man in Kingston could remember the smell of August heat and dust in the schoolroom from the years when school started on the third Monday in August.

Dyan and Michael Jones say one of the major goals of this project has been "to provide our children with a document that preserves as much as humanly possible the words and images of a group of people who lived in a time period many of us have never experienced. It is a photographic and anthropological study into the last wilderness of an ancient but still living human society."

The Octo Project: A Celebration of Age opens at the Rails' End Gallery on Saturday, October 21 and continues until Saturday, November 18. The public is invited to meet Dyan Jones on Saturday, October 21 between 1 and 4 p.m.

FACTS

Q. How does what I eat relate to my chances of having a heart attack or stroke?

A. If you eat fatty foods -- such as butter, whole milk, ice cream, cream cheeses -- or use saturated oil in cooking, your body is taking in too much fat. Eating these foods can lead to a build-up of fatty deposits in the arteries of your heart. Clogged arteries are the leading cause of heart attack and stroke.

For more information on these or other facts, please contact your nearest office of the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario.

Another season has opened for the Minden Recreational Hockey League and this year there are two new team sponsors.

Sid Stamp Fuels and West Side Jug City have lent their sponsorship to teams this year. Filling out the six-team league are Hartwick Insurance, The Rockcliffe Tavern, The Times and Home Hardware.

The first games of the season were played last Monday evening at the Minden arena. Stamp edged Hartwick in the opener. Home outscored the Rockcliffe in game two, and The Times blasted Westside in the final game.

STAMP 9, HARTWICK 6

Five goals off the stick of Craig Crowe helped carry the Sid Stamp team to a 9-6 victory in the first game of the season. Greg Newell picked up a hat-trick in this game while Greg Carpenter added one to the Stamp tally.

Jeff Carpenter was the top scorer for Hartwick with two goals. Kevin Hamilton, Brian Shaw, Dave Belner and Dave Dollo each added one.

HOME 7, ROCKCLIFFE 5

Home Hardware opened their season on a winning note, edging The Rockcliffe 7-5 in the second game of the night with Scott Hamilton leading the way with four goals. Kevin Smith scored another two of Home's goals, while Irwin Asbell added one.

Colin Newell scored twice for The Rockcliffe, while singles were notched by Dave Hartwick, Doug Ray and John Ballantyne.

TIMES 11, WESTSIDE 3

Westside had their hands full in their season opener, losing 11-3 to a high-scoring Times squad.

Ivan Ingram paved the way to The Times' victory with five goals. Dennis McKee scored twice, while Eldon Bull, Andy McKenzie and Scott Gartshore each added one.

Kim Hamilton scored two goals for Westside, while Craig Smith scored once.

All games in the men's recreational league will be played on Mondays, with the first game starting at 7 p.m.

Shuffleboard season was very successful

by Marian Ingram

Well we had a very successful year at Shuffleboard this summer. The weather co-operated and there were very few days missed because of rain. I think everybody had a fun time as I heard a lot of kibbitzing and laughter all summer.

On October 11 we had our Pot Luck lunch at the Minden Lawn Bowling Club, for which I thank Ross Farr, the President, for letting us use their facilities. Forty-four of our 51 members attended.

The prizes were won as follows:

—Mon. Single Ladies - May Sinclair, 1st; Betty Milford, 2nd; Norma Cook, 3rd.

—Mon. Single Men - Bill Milford, 1st; Clare Brown, 2nd; Harry Cowan, 3rd.

—Wed. Doubles - Clare Brown & Mary Busby, 1st; Hilda Harrison & Dorothy McElwain, 2nd; Gordon Jones & Marie Thompson, 3rd.

We played euchre after lunch and the winners were: High Lady - Rheta Brown, Loan Hands - Irene Fuhr, High Man - Milton Fletcher, Loan Hands - Bill Milford.

We have a new group of directors:

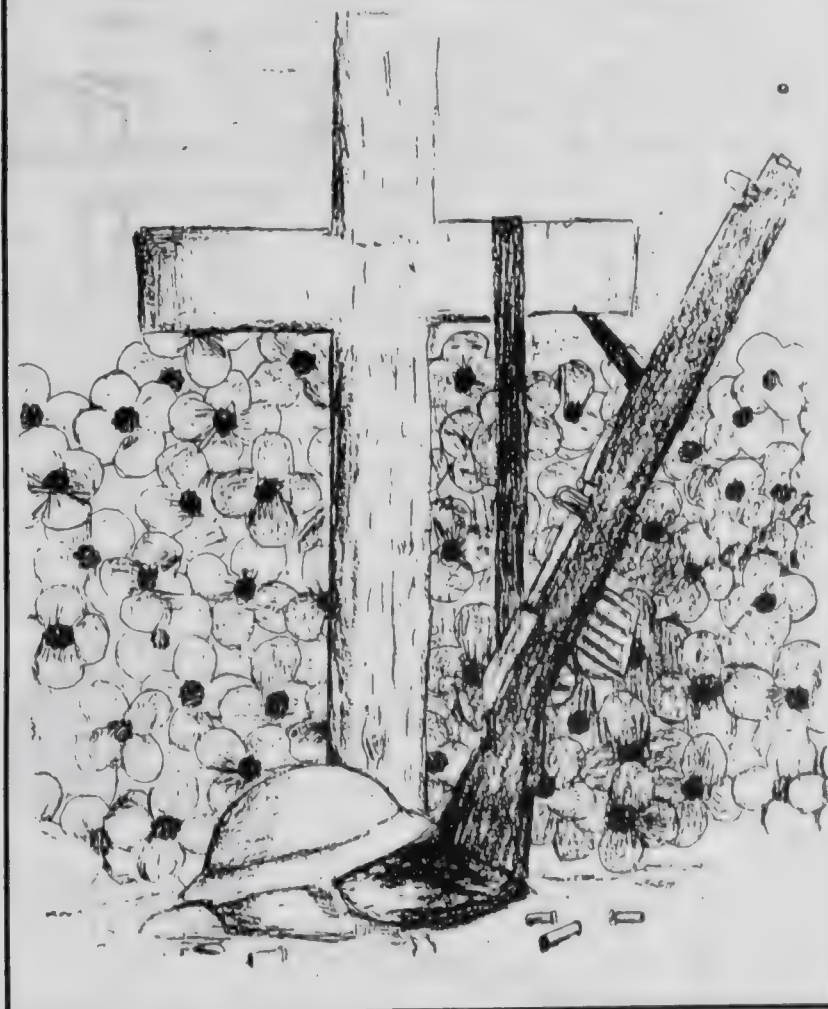

Bill Ingram - Past President, Marian Ingram - Treasurer, Nancy Cook - Secretary, Bob Cook - Director, Doris Wilkinson - Director, Ross Farr - Director, Marie Thompson - Director, Ken Thompson - Director, Irene Fuhr - Director, Marie Dennie - Director, Grace Dixon - Director, Harold Dixon - Director.

The former Directors responsible for getting a New Horizon's Grant to build our facilities in 1986: Bill Ingram, Marian Ingram, Don Sinclair, May Sinclair, Grace Dixon, Harold Dixon, Eleanor Pye, Doris Wilkinson, Nancy Cook and Bob Cook.

Sorenson qualifies for COSSA cross country

For the first time in a few years, Haliburton Highlands Secondary School entered a team in the Kawartha Cross Country championships and all six runners completed the course with personal best times.

Marc Sorenson, who placed 16 in a field of about 70 runners at Thursday's race in Peterborough, was the only HHSS athlete to qualify for COSSA. However, coach Eva Griffith says Sorenson probably will not be going to that race because of his involvement on the school soccer team.

Sorenson is one of the key players on the senior soccer team, which last week secured first place in Kawartha West and will be in the playoffs this week.

Griffith said she was pleased with the performances from all the HHSS runners in the Kawartha meet. She said they all trained hard for the event and their efforts paid off as each runner accomplished a personal best time on the tough course at Trent University.

Matt Brydon was the only HHSS runner in the Midget race. He placed 46th with a time of 22:32 over the 4,900 metre course.

Cameron Young finished 47th in the 6,500-metre Junior race with a time of 29:55.

Representing HHSS in the senior class were Sorenson, Darren Byers, Justin White and Pat Casey. Sorenson took 16th place with a time of 32:39 over the 7,800 metre course. Byers was 28th with a time of 34:32. White finished in 52nd spot with a time of 42:39, and Casey was 54th with a time of 43:25.

Novices open with a win

The OMHA Minden Novice A's began the 1989-90 hockey season with a very exciting win in Fenelon Falls last Thursday night.

Philip Daniels led off the scoring when he received a breakaway pass from Chris Kerr late in the first period.

Minden kept the lead until early in the third period when Andrew Oake of Fenelon knotted the game at one.

With a little over four minutes remaining in the third, Danny Jordan took a pass from Philip Daniels and blew one by the Fenelon goalie for the winning goal.

Wayne Kernohan blocked a shot late in the third period with a great defensive play. Shane Flood also had an outstanding game in the Minden net stopping many Fenelon chances.

Rezoning for log home on highway approved

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Minden council has passed the necessary re-zoning to allow a log house construction business to locate on Highway 35.

CAN Log owner Nick Judge appeared at a public meeting to request an official plan amendment and rezoning so he may locate his business on the property next to Westside Jug City.

Although the zoning permits the limited construction of log homes on the property, Judge told council the only construction that will take place on the site will be the one log home already started. Judge said he plans to live in the home and also use it as a display model to sell his product.

The homes he sells will be built on the customer's property and not on the Highway 35 location, he said.

Judge told council he wants his property to be attractive because it is the first thing people see as they enter the village of Minden.

Councillor Lewis Stevens asked whether the industrial designation for the site was necessary since only the one home will be built there. Judge said the designation would be a "useful thing to keep" and said the Planning Advisory Committee recommended it.

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry said aspects of the site's appearance and landscaping can be covered under the site plan agreement, and that the township's planner had recommended that Judge's request be granted.

Stevens raised the question of Judge's building permit, which was not issued until October 5, several weeks after construction had started.

He said he was "not particularly happy with the deal" because "a lot of things are unanswered." Regardless of council's decision, Stevens said Judge would probably proceed with the project.

Judge explained that he was only recently aware there was a problem with the permit. He said he had applied for a permit to Minden's then building official Brad Bradamore, who had told him to go ahead and start building before the permit was issued.

The site has been inspected by both Bradamore and the building official from Fenelon Falls who has been carrying out some of Minden's inspections since Bradamore was fired by council in August.

"I have more reason than anyone to run down our past by-law officer," said Berry, referring to comments Bradamore made about the Deputy-Reeve at the time of his dismissal. He said council had to accept Judge's claim that he was given permission to build before the permit was issued.

Council unanimously voted to grant Judge the necessary rezoning and official plan amendment.

To look at Lorraine you'd never know she has a disability - but she does.

"I think people regard others who have a hidden disability as incapable of handling a job because they don't understand. It's hard to understand something you can't see."

Like over 937,000 adults in Ontario, Lorraine has a disability. She has one of the many different kinds of hidden disabilities. But Lorraine doesn't let it stop her from leading a full life. She's an active member of her community, a wife and a mother of two children and she has a full-time job.

In fact, the biggest problem Lorraine has is not her epilepsy but the way people look at it. Now, if we judge Lorraine by something we can't see - perhaps we should take a closer look at ourselves.

Convoy of Model T's rolls into Minden

It is not unusual for groups of individuals to tour the Highlands by auto to see the coloured leaves each fall. However, the group that motored through Minden and other communities October 14, was a little different.

The occasion was a gathering of the Ontario chapter of the Model T Club, a small section of a world-wide group of Model T aficionados.

The president of the Ontario chapter, Garry Potter, is currently serving as president of the international club as well. He was on hand to take part in the tour, which he described as being the last of the season for the car buffs. Most owners of Model T's guard their vehicles with a passion and so the cars are safely tucked away for the winter.

The special weekend was organized by Charlie Muli, the owner of a 1914 Model T and the Frontier Ford dealership in Minden which sells the latest models off the Ford Motor Company production line.

However, if there is one car which is a symbol of the Ford company, or mass production in general, it is Henry Ford's Model T. According to Potter, there were 15 million Model Ts produced world-wide, with some 750,000 in Canada. The club which he heads, does not know how many are left in the world, but in North America, those which have been discovered have been lovingly restored. In other parts of the world, Model Ts, or modified versions of the original vehicles, are still being used to provide transportation.

While many people think of the Model T as the "first private motor vehicle for general consumption, it was, in fact, preceded by a whole alphabet of models. Henry Ford started with the Model A and worked his way through all the letters with each model change until he hit on T. The T seemed to have the features the public wanted back in 1909. Production of the Model T continued until 1927, when Mr. Ford decided it was time for a change. (Marketing managers within the company convinced Mr. Ford that the name Model U was not "saleable", so the nomenclature switched back to the beginning of the alphabet.)

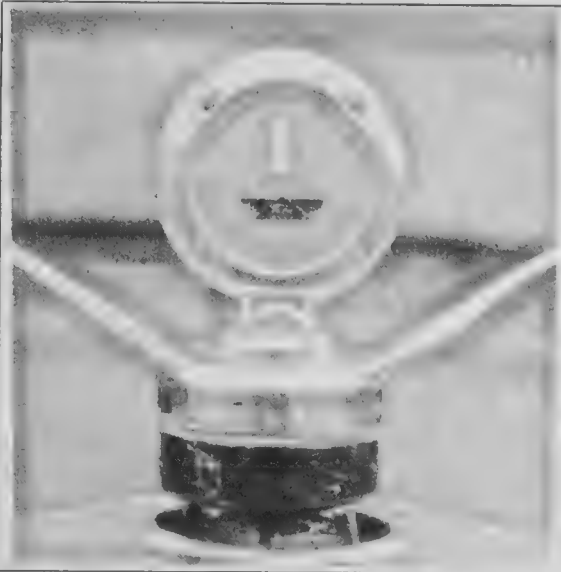

Interestingly, the Model T was available in a number of colours between 1909 and 1916 and after 1925. In the intervening years, a buyer could have his vehicle in any colour as long as it was black.

The original Model T sold for $300 to $400, with $25 more for a starter.

The car featured a form of automatic transmission, which involved the use of three pedals to engage the clutch. Top speed was about 40 miles per hour, more than adequate when roads were more likely to be ruts rather than pavement. Besides, the quality of the braking system would not have been suitable for travelling at higher speeds.

While a number of local owners drove to the rally starting point in Minden, most from outside the area, brought their Model Ts to Minden on a trailer and then set out on their cross-country tour. Included in the itinerary was a stop at Pike's Peak overlooking Minden, a picnic lunch at Head Lake Park in Haliburton and a stop at a local craft studio.

The Model Ts may be safely tucked away for another season, but the members of the Ontario chapter will have a busy winter as they prepare for an international convention planned for next July in Toronto. Model T owners from around the world are expected to converge on the Prince Hotel in Toronto for the gathering July 14 to 21.

It was almost like a scene out of the early part of the century last weekend as dozens of Model T Fords cruised the roads in and around the Highlands. The visit, which was organized by Charlie Muli from Frontier Ford in Minden, included a fall colour tour, a picnic lunch and a stop at a craft studio.

Many confused about project's location

Editor:

The people of my neighbourhood are presently involved in an effort to save our current Residential, first density zoning.

There has been a proposal brought to the Anson, Hindon and Minden Council by Mr. Ray Moore to construct a 56-unit condominium complex in the heart of our community. This development requires an amendment to our Official Plan and our Density By-law, therefore, it should be of interest to all rate-payers in the Village of Minden.

Over the last few weeks, I have been approached by numerous Minden residents who question me regarding this proposed development. Most of these people are under the impression that the complex is to be constructed somewhere on the top of Mount Minden. I am amazed that so few people are aware of the actual location of this development. It is, in fact, to be built within 100 feet of our main street; virtually the centre of our village. I feel that this development will bring with it great change to the Village of Minden. It would be helpful, indeed, if The Times would publish a map of the location of this proposed development in an effort to keep all rate-payers informed of the changes our council is currently considering for our community.

B. Elias,
Minden.

Editor's Note: I'm sorry, we don't have a map that shows the location of this development. Ray Moore's property is located on the hill behind the Registry Office. Access to the property is from St. Germaine Street. The property also fronts on Newcastle Street, east of Milne Street.

Cottagers object to expansion delays

Editor's Note

The following letter from the Soyers Lake Ratepayers' Association was addressed to Ontario Health Minister Elinor Caplan.

Dear Mrs. Caplan:

At the annual meeting of the Soyers Lake Ratepayers' Association on October 7, 1989, members discussed the Provincial Government's Withdrawal of its support for the much-needed expansion of the Haliburton Hospital. The following resolution was unanimously passed:

"THAT THE ASSOCIATION APPROACH THE MINISTER OF HEALTH AND REQUEST THAT THE DECISION TO DEFER THE EXPANSION OF HALIBURTON HOSPITAL BE RESCINDED AND THAT THE EXPANSION BE PUT IN HAND WITHOUT FURTHER DELAY."

We trust that you will respond to this expression of concern along with the many others that you have received.

(Mrs.) Primrose Birrell, Secretary.

Low-density residential living preferred

this; all adjacent properties were zoned residential, first class and/or rural uses. When Minden adopted its Official Plan, (this document is a guideline for the next ten years, direction for the future of the village) the area surrounding our home was labelled "Village Residential". According to the Standards printed in the Official Plan, the maximum density permitted in "Village Residential" is 17 units per hectare. Having read this plan we felt confident that our chosen lifestyle would be maintained during the coming decade.

Now I find myself subjected to the possibility of living directly across the road from a 112 space parking lot and a busy intersection. This notion is completely offensive to me. If this proposal becomes reality I will find it necessary to re-locate my family.

How will I decide where to purchase a home in Anson, Hindon and Minden? To the best of my knowledge, the only planning documents Minden currently has are By-law 86-26 (specific zoning and residential densities as they were at the time the plan was drafted), and our Official Plan (a "broad brush" vision of the future for A.H. & M. in which all residential areas of the village are referred to as "Village Residential" and no distinction is made as to what densities of housing are permitted where?). Although I was familiar with both of these documents, they did not prepare me for what is about to take place in my neighbourhood now. Is there some plan that I don't know about? Are there any residential, first density areas in the Village of Minden which are targetted to remain such in years to come? Are there some residential areas which are targetted for multi-unit housing in the near future? Does Minden have an unwritten plan for various residential densities? How can a rate-payer acquire this knowledge? I need to know this if I am to make a secure investment in my next home. Is this information available only to those involved in development? Can a home buyer purchase property in Minden and feel that their investment is secure?

M.A. Wilson,
Minden.

Dam would flood 15,000 acres of land

need, the Alameda dam on Moose Mountain Creek was started. So the U.S. offer made Rafferty possible and that, in turn, made Alameda necessary.

The dam will flood about 15,000 acres of land. But those acres are not just on flat plain, they are part of a ribbon of habitat for the endangered plants and a corridor in which wildlife can live and move.

Dam construction was started in June, '86 and then put on hold for the winter. In April '89, the court ruled that the dam permits were illegal because a proper environmental impact assessment had not been made. In response, the federal government commissioned an environmental report. The report noted that the dams would have "significant impacts" on the environment and that there remained "significant information deficiencies".

In June, public meetings were held to allow people to comment on the report. Proponents of the dam stressed the benefits of jobs, flood control and agricultural water, whereas its opponents pressed for Phase 2 of the assessment — a full panel review with public hearings. Over the summer, Eric Bernston, the Deputy Premier of Saskatchewan, threatened that if dam construction did not begin by fall, they would never be built.

The "benefits" of the dams disappear on inspection. Downstream, the $4-million fishery and the ducks in North Dakota will all be put at risk while the quality of water reaching Manitoba has yet to be assessed. Computer simulations show that even after the '76 flood, Rafferty would only be 83% full if all water was retained for a year. Based on average rainfall, a dam built in 1912 would not have filled until 1952. Even without global warming, 75 per cent of the average annual flow in the Rafferty will evaporate during the summer! The current projected costs of the dams and Shand are $1.3 billion and large projects like this are notorious for cost overruns.

Nevertheless, on August 31, Mr. Bouchard issued a permit for construction of the dams. His decision must have been dictated by priorities of short-term jobs and flood control. It would be far cheaper and simpler to encourage people to move away from chronic flood areas but human imperatives always seem to demand that nature conform to us rather than the other way around.

Have Concert is set for November 4

Haliburton's Help a Village Effort (HAVE) annual concert is slated for November 4 at the high school and will feature recording artist Nancy Ward.

Coming out of the arts community in Saskatoon as one of the top local talents, Ward shared coffee house stages with several national performers during the 60's, then moved East to join Ian Thomas' group Tranquility Base, the first of many groups and solo artists with whom she worked through the 70's.

Although she played primarily pop music, she maintained her classical roots by practicing and writing in private. A symphony entitled The Fall, commissioned by Boris Brott, was performed by the Hamilton Philharmonic in 1977. She released her first solo album entitled Nancy Ward in 1980, produced in Montreal by Francois Dompierre. In recent years she has performed many one-woman shows as well as touring for 18 months with Sylvia Tyson's pianist and back-up vocalist.

We Want to Grow Up was recorded in 1986. It grew out of Ward's love of children and her belief that they have a critical role to play in creating a more peaceful world. "We think of children as carefree but I don't think that's the case at all. They are going to inherit some big challenges in the years to come, and a lot of them know it. It's important that we, as adults, assure them that we're on their side."

It is through this fun-filled album that children and adults in Haliburton County have come to know and love Ward's music. Her HAVE performance will not be a children's concert. However, it will be geared for a family audience and young fans are welcome to attend.

The HAVE Committee is especially delighted that Ward's back-up band is also able to donate their time and talent: The audience will welcome back old friends Ken Hadley (sax) and Richard Stouffer (percussion). With talented Steve Clark (base) and band leader, John Ebatta (synthesizer), HAVE is promising a show that will "knock your socks off!"

Codie Wilbee star of the screen

When Norman Wilbee and Mary Gillis of Minden turned on their television set on a recent trip to Mexico they were surprised and delighted to see the smiling face of their grandson, Codie Wilbee, smiling back.

At eight years of age, Codie is making a splash with his appearances in feature films and commercials. Mr. Wilbee's grandson, who lives in Vancouver with his mother, Charlene, has appeared in commercials for everything from McDonalds Restaurants to Mattel Toys.

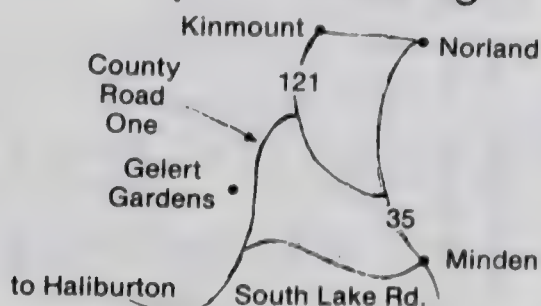

Most recently, Codie has been working alongside Gene Hackman in the production of a feature film, called "Narrow Margin". Mr. Wilbee says the film, which was to be completed in September, is a suspense drama and should be available for viewing this winter.

With his mother's guidance, Codie has had extensive training in music and the arts. But Mr. Wilbee says it's Codie's natural smile and sparkling hazel eyes that help win him spots in front of the cameras. Codie's grandfather also says Codie has a tremendous memory and can remember his lines after just one reading.

Hi Kids!
Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down forward, backward and diagonally.

They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

LACAC seminars to be staged in Huntsville

On Saturday, October 28 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., The Ontario Historical Society and Heritage Huntsville are presenting a workshop for heritage organizations and Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee (LACACs) in Muskoka, Haliburton and Parry Sound. The program will be held at the Huntsville Town Hall on 37 Main Street in Huntsville, Ontario.

The workshop will include sessions on "Promoting Heritage Conservation in Your Community", "Discovering Your Community as a Heritage Resource", and "Heritage Programs and Municipalities Working Together".

A concurrent session will offer a choice between "LACACs: Roles and Responsibilities" or "Heritage Programs for Young People in the Community", and the workshop will conclude with a walking tour of the town.

The workshop, supported by The Ministry of Culture and Communications, Christine E. Hart, Minister, is one in a series of more than 20 programs taking place throughout the province in 1989 and 1990 designed to provide an opportunity for interaction between heritage organizations and LACACs and to bring together experts in the field of preservation.

This is an excellent opportunity for those in Muskoka, Haliburton and Parry Sound who share an interest in heritage to discuss challenges and concerns.

Registration fee is $10. Registration deadline is Monday, October 23.

Tough penalties for habitat destruction

indications are that area courts, recognizing the significance of fisheries habitat destruction, may start dealing out significantly larger penalties in the future.

Ministry staff feel they have been receiving a generally positive response from the public since efforts stepped up to preserve this important aspect of our natural environment.

Applications for work permits are available at the ministry office in Minden.

Legion Euchre October 12

Lone Hands - Esther Lee, Men - Brad McKnight, High man - Joe Lumsden, Lady - Lil Martin, Others - Mary Coltman, Jack Weekes.

Austin Henderson of Kinmount, retired game warden, recently had a visitor. A two-year-old black bear climbed up the apple tree, onto the roof of the breezeway of the garage, proceeded to walk across the roof of the house, came down the hydro pole and retired for the evening. The surprise visitor returned again, climbed the apple tree and sat on the garage roof and ate the apples from the tree. He fell off the roof after attempting to reach a really juicy apple and landed on his bottom.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Bowman and Joshua from Welcome accompanied by Mrs. Bowman of Bowmanville, visited with Maud Coulter on Sunday.

St. Paul Euchre Ladies high - Ruby Smith, Joyce Hewitt; Men - Jack Chilton, Sid Rowe; Lone hand - Verna McDonald.

Peg and Ed Pettinger report that Maisie McIntosh was overwhelmed by the many wonderful cards and best wishes received on her birthday, October 6. She was delighted and thanks everyone.

To Ann and Ralph:

I know a young couple who are so very nice to find anyone kinder you would have to look twice. They really are so kind to us all, he even picked me up when I had a bad fall. I am talking of the drivers who taxi us around, it's a wonder they are not worn out, they cover so much ground. So this is to wish them good health and good cheer, and I hope that they will be with us next year.

Kinettes have come a long way

For Your Service

by Sue Ripley

Kinettes have come a long way since the afternoon tea and sandwiches of 1932 to become full partners in the Associations of Kinsmen and Kinette Clubs in 1988.

The first half of October has been busy with all the girls manning the chuckwagon for the Demolition Derby. Thanks to Kinette Carla Stewart who did a great job as chairman of this project. Thanks also go to Kin Don Nye, our main hamburger cooker.

Our general meeting was held at the Minden

Legion. Our theme was bring a buddy night. It was followed by a Tupperware party given by guest Gidgette Lougheed. Many of the proceeds of our projects go toward community service, however the proceeds were generously donated to one of our favourite recipients, the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

In the near future we are looking forward to placing a team in the Zone Curling Bonspiel held in Lindsay. Also, many Kinettes will enjoy a Harvest Excursion, a day of visiting, eating and shop - shop - shopping!!

That's all for now, until next month, yours in Kinettes.

Cabinet shuffle allows for more time for constituents

by John Eakins MPP

The fall session of the Ontario Legislature is under way and I look forward to actively participating. The direction of my activity will change somewhat, but these changed responsibilities will be just as important as before.

The change of Cabinet responsibilities will allow me closer access to the people of my riding and their needs. I would like to say here that I shall always be grateful to the Premier for giving me this opportunity to serve. It came, as many of you know, at an important time in the adjustment of my life. It was of tremendous help to me.

Also, it has been my view that these experiences should be shared and that other colleagues should have similar opportunity.

There will be other challenges ahead and I look forward to them with great anticipation.

During these past four years, I have had the opportunity to serve as a member of the Executive Council and to be part of some of the most important decisions made in the history of this great province. As the minister of two important portfolios, I was responsible for the introduction of a number of very important reforms. These reforms were long overdue. I will now have the opportunity to assist my riding in explaining and implementing these new legislative changes.

I look upon this period of my service as one of reform and change. In the upcoming series of Queen's Park Reports, I want to deal with the question of why these changes were necessary and how they relate to the future growth and development of our counties.

I want also to change the format of this column. In past years this has been a weekly report and it centred mostly on bills and information which are already made available through other media forms. So, in following with these changes, I will be writing the column on a bi-monthly basis.

Perhaps I can be more successful in the future than in the past in relating these legislative changes to you.

In the meantime, if you wish information on government programs and initiatives, please do not hesitate to contact me either in Toronto or toll free through my constituency office.

Martha Group fills in with lovely lunch and tea

Hi Senior League readers,

Since it is Thursday again we had a tea party. The Harcourt Crossroads Group was scheduled to come but since they were unable, the Martha Group from Minden United Church came. We had a lovely lunch and thank them very much.

In the evening we had bingo with Glen Edwards (another first-time caller) who called a good game. We thank him and really appreciate his coming.

Friday afternoon we had Happy Hour with Fred

Cooper, Sinc Russell and Doris providing the entertainment. We appreciate their music and really thank them.

Mable Buttery had her brother Walter Ackersblade to see her after lunch Friday.

Lucy Burgess had Mrs. Mary Wunker from Miner's Bay to see her Saturday.

Rev. John Burgess had Kay and Grace England from Calvary Baptist Church, Burlington to see him and his wife Mary, a resident here, who is not

ell. This was the last church

Mr. Burgess had charge of before he came here.

May Horsley and Ina McGuire attended the dedication service of a stained glass window at St. Andrew's Anglican Church in West Guilford to the memory of Mark and Jane Sisson. Jane was the daughter of Nelson Barnum. The remaining nine children were all present and had donated the window in honour of their parents.

Rev. John Burgess conducted the Sunday evening service in the chapel.

Doris Robertson is having a week's vacation, she is attending Sir Sandford Fleming College to learn 'Willow Weaving'.

Monday night we had Ena Marion and Ruth Rice to show movies. They were the "Land of the Loon" and Saint Marie Among the Hurons". We enjoyed the movies and thank the ladies for showing them to us.

Sunday afternoon May and Roy Cameron and Jackie Yateaman, my niece, took Wilda LaRue and I out for dinner which was a pleasant change.

Friday night Verna Jarvis had the misfortune while sitting on the side of her bed, to fall off. Fortunately she didn't break any bones, but is bruised and has a cut on her head.

Isabella Gardner also had the misfortune to fall and hurt her shoulder.

Tuesday afternoon we had a quiz session which we all enjoyed and gave our brains some exercise.

Maisie McIntosh had her sister Peggy and two friends, Clarence and Margaret Kanarr from Grosse Point Park, Michigan U.S.A. to visit her Tuesday afternoon.

Mark has returned from moose hunting in Thunder Bay area and was successful. We are glad you had a good trip.

I'm sorry there was an error in my column last week. It should have read Mabel and Eldon Deacon.

Pearl Lyle had her daughters Jean and Anna on Wednesday to visit her.

Pastor Murray came Wednesday night for a service in the main lounge.

Legion Poppy Campaign about to begin

We are about to enter into that time of the year when as members of The Royal Canadian Legion, with the blood red poppy of Flanders as an emblem, we remember and honour the sacrifices of those of our Comrades who laid down their lives for those ideals which we cherish. We also remember those of their dependents left behind and those who still suffer from honourable wounds and disabilities.

Under the Chairmanship of Comrade Bruce Porter, Branch 636 will for its third time be conducting a Poppy Campaign. Last year we were successful in raising $3,095.77. Of this $1,267.52 was expended on Remembrance Day disbursements. A further $1,300.00 was directed into The Royal Canadian Legion Charitable Foundation which massively supports hospital building, plant and equipment needs of various hospitals throughout this Province. We will again be active on November 3, 4 and 10 at various places in the community. Our members will be seen with their white and red Poppy boxes and we hope the public will give them their usual warm and generous support. To you, the members, we respectfully remind you of our oath on initiation when you agreed to ever strive by all proper means to promote the work of the Legion including active participation in Poppy Campaigns. Members and affiliates wishing to help may contact Bruce Porter (Res. 286-3052, Legion 286-4541). He will welcome your participation.

Our Branch will be marching to the County Cairn for the Service of Remembrance at 11 a.m. on November 11. We would like to have as many members present for this parade as possible. Members of the public will be very welcome too.

Our Comrades at Branch 488 Brechin again held their Remembrance parade early. Yesterday a number of our members and our Colour Party attended their service. We were again hospitably received by Brechin Branch.

Some of the coming events of note are our Honours and Awards Banquet at the Crowe's Nest on the evening of November 11. Our Hallowe'en Dance - tickets $6 each - is at 8 p.m. October 28. Let's have everyone in costume for this one. Prizes for the best ladies and gent's costumes will be given. Judging will be based on originality and craftsmanship of the costumes. Please purchase your tickets early at the bar. On November 26 we will again be having our Grey Cup Party at the Branch. There should be lots of excitement and good food. All members try to be there and bring a friend.

We again wish to remind all members and affiliates of our efforts to again be tops in the Early Bird drive. Please have your 1990 dues paid before November 15 so we can have them to Dominion Command by November 30. You could bring your Dues to the next General Meeting on November 1 and give them to Comrade Ann McAdam, who is handling this drive as she has done for the past two years, or they can be paid at the bar.

The Thursday evening euchre games are continuing under the direction of Comrade Ken Wallace. Everyone is welcome and we believe you will enjoy yourselves.

Constable Maybee was guest speaker at meeting

The Soyers Lake Ratepayers' Association held its Annual Meeting at the PineStone Inn on Saturday, October 7. Lew McCorriston, President and chairman of the meeting, welcomed the 44 members and several guests including Gary and Janet Kapac from the Canning Lake Association.

GUEST SPEAKER

Constable Mike Maybee, Marine Officer, OPP, was the guest speaker. He provided a lot of information on boating safety, spiced with humour. He stated that the marine patrol puts in approximately 400 boating hours each summer, checking some 1300-1500 boats for safety equipment and alcohol. The reason for most injuries and deaths in boating accidents is lack of safety equipment, i.e. life jackets, paddles or oars, a bailing bucket and a horn or other sound signalling system. For distress signals he recommended a whistle as it can be fastened to the life jacket for use in the water and it stands out above the usual cottage noises and shouting. Members learned that the only vessels exempt from carrying paddles and bailers are windsurfers and jet skis, and that a float plane is a vessel until it is "on step" ready to take off, when it has right of way over boats. Constable Maybee answered questions on speed limit signs, notices prohibiting wake from boats, licencing and transfer of ownership, lights on canoes at night, and when a boat becomes a residence where alcohol is consumed. He stated that new regulations are being drafted to replace the maze of regulations covering the newer types of craft. He remarked that next year the marine patrol boat will be repainted and unmarked but will still be equipped with radar and binoculars.

LAKE TESTING

The Soyers Lake Association has participated since 1975 in the Ministry of the Environment's Self Help Program for testing lake water. This year, nine samples were collected by Ross Partridge, Chairman of the Pollution Control Committee. Ross stated that unfortunately, no report has come back from the Ministry since 1987 on the condition of the lake based on the samples taken. However, he indicated that according to ecchi disc readings the lake would now be classified as moderately enriched with nutrients. He strongly urged property owners to take note of the increase in enrichment over the years, and to do all in their power to cut down the quantity of nutrients entering the lake.

DORSET SEMINAR

Ross Partridge and Bruce Birrell attended the first

Conservation Seminar held at the Frost Centre in Dorset on August 18. 125 persons representing 55 cottagers' associations attended, along with Rejeanne Anthon, President of FOCA, and support staff and experts from the Ministry.

Anthon said FOCA has a lake stewardship award, and cottage associations should be pressing local councils to encourage shoreline conservation. The protection of fish is important as an indicator of the health of our lakes.

Points made by government officials were:

- Conservation aims are to ensure that natural resources will survive and be used intelligently. People should think globally and act locally. We should consider ourselves not owners of lakeshore property but custodians - labouring to preserve and conserve natural resources for our children and grandchildren.

- Effluent from septic systems and nutrients such as phosphates and detergents promote the growth of algae and weeds which consume dissolved oxygen at the lake bottom, forcing cold water fish such as lake trout to higher levels where they eventually die.

- Most fish spawn in areas less than 1 metre deep, usually near the shoreline which if disturbed can disrupt spawning as well as removing small rocks used by small fish to hide from predators.

- The removal of rocks and disturbance of the lake bottom near the shore is now forbidden under penalty of a fine. The Ministry of the Environment should be consulted before working on your cottage shoreline, and can offer help and advice as well as literature on the subject. Keep your cottage lot as natural as possible.

ROAD ALLOWANCE

It was reported that in Minden as in many other townships, a number of property owners are considering purchasing the 66-foot lakeshore allowance abutting their property. One member reported that the Township would not allow him to add sand to his beach without first acquiring the 66 foot allowance.

BACK LOT

According to press reports of discussions concerning back lot development, it has been suggested that the 1,000 minimum setback prescribed by Council be reduced to 400 feet. Association members raised concerns that such a reduction would lead to increased pollution of lakes from septic tank effluent, possible trespass by back lot owners seeking lake access, and the opening of unopened road allowances. It was noted that back lots around Soyers Lake are already being built on. One member opposed piecemeal changes in development planning and suggested that communication with council be improved so that ratepayers might participate in planning processes (more on page 37)

Art show opened Saturday

Deriving her inspiration from the early periods of Japanese, African and North American Native cultures, Monica Johnston beautifully blends together colour, pattern and form in exquisite porcelain vessels.

For Monica, the surface of each newly-formed porcelain vessel is like a painter's canvas giving her freedom to explore her fascination with lines, birds, plant life and geometric patterning.

Once the images and designs are carved into the surface of each vessel, earthenware glazes are brushed on to enhance and colour the decoration.

The pieces are then bisqued fired to mature the glazes and harden the clay so they will withstand the smoking process. The vessels are smoke fired by placing them in a garbage can with burning sawdust and newspapers. The last step in finishing the work is to clean them. The excess carbon is removed by scrubbing with steel and wool and cleaner.

The public is invited to meet Monica Johnston on Saturday, October 21 between 1 and 4 p.m. at the Rails' End Gallery.

The gallery is housed in a historic, century-old railway station located in the heart of the village of Haliburton. It is open from Tuesday to Saturday, between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Parks maintenance is a national priority

by Bill Scott, MP

The creation and maintenance of Canada's national parks is a priority of the Progressive Conservative government.

That is why Environment Minister Lucien Bouchard recently announced the establishment of a Joint Working Group to discuss with Churchill - area residents the possibility of creating a new national park in the Hudson Bay lowlands.

Informal federal-provincial discussions on the idea began last year. At that time, Bouchard and his Manitoba counterpart, Harry Enns, decided that if the initiative was to be pursued further, a higher level of community participation was essential.

The working group will consult Churchill-area residents on the development and operation of the proposed park and on community involvement in the project.

Our national parks program is designed to ensure that significant examples of our country's natural heritage are protected for all time in order to foster public understanding, appreciation and enjoyment. The Canadian Parks Service has divided Canada's landscape into 39 distinct regions, with the ultimate aim of having all 39 regions represented in the national parks system.

Right now, 21 of the 39 natural regions are represented, and the Hudson Bay Lowlands is one of the 18 remaining areas without representation. A national park in the Churchill area of Manitoba would protect its unique natural heritage.

The proposed Churchill National Park would be interesting for a variety of reasons. The area supports a healthy portion of the world's most southerly polar bear population, along with one of the largest polar bear denning sites. In addition, the Hudson Bay Lowlands feature woodland caribou, Lesser Snow Geese, nesting colonies of the rare Golden Plover, and large populations of other shore birds.

High-flying Bandy at local libraries

by Joel Levis

So it's 1925 and now our hero Bandy is attempting to set up a new air force for the Maharajah of Jhamjarh while trying to compensate for the invariably less-than-far-seeing policies of the Raj.

The plan is that the new air force will be just spiffy if the nasty neighbours decide to invade with all of their neat equipment. But they had better count on the unorthodox methods and outrageous behaviour of Our Man Bandy.

Me So Far by Donald Jack is just the latest in a long line of titles about the escapades of Bartholomew Bandy.

It is also the last.

So here is your final chance to enjoy the humour of Donald Jack and his friend Bandy. Of course, if you haven't read any of the other hilarious titles, it may be your first chance.

All are available at or through your local branch of the Haliburton County Public Library. Serving you since 1965!
